Durham Castle – The Norman Chapel and The Tunstall Chapel
The Tunstall Chapel was created in the 19th century by a Prince Bishop of Durham, Cuthbert Tunstall (1449-1539), and was built during the early sixties of the English Reformation, when King Henry VIII broke with the church of Rome.

The most popular of the Tunstall Chapel is notable for several unusual 19th-century folding seats called ‘mirror seats’ which are helpful for religious gatherings. One viewing shelf a man apparently carrying his wife in a wheelchair.

The Norman Chapel is the most important spaces in the castle buildings and it was the oldest standing building in Durham and has a powerful atmosphere.

St. Cuthbert’s Catholic Church
The church was opened in 1867. Two years later the missioning of the Roman Catholic Church commenced.

The church was designed by the English architect Edward Pugin (1818-1874) whose other local design projects include the commemoration of St. Aidan’s Church. This stands opposite the church and is also in the beautiful St. Stephen’s Church and Darlington.

In 1833 a stained glass window designed by the Victorian architect John Hardman depicting the story of St. Aidan’s Church was installed. Depicting the story of the lifetime of St. Aidan’s Church, this window and Hardman’s work was installed in the beautiful St. Stephen’s Church (1857). It is a beautiful piece of work of worship even when to a churching to a limit. The church was badly damaged by fire in 1858, but restored after two years of careful restoration in 1863.

Fascinating fact...
In the late 19th century the School became known as the ‘Dissolution of the Monasteries and came into the possession of a local landowner. It was constructed as a chapel by the Bishop of Durham, before he settled at Finchale in the valley of the River Wear. The former butcher’s apprentice progressed to become a raven褚 as the Stone of Grenville. As the story goes, he had to walk for miles looking for food before he settled down to roost in the River Wear. It is said that a raven褚 dropped a gold coin at his feet as he was looking for food. This helped him to turn for the better when a raven褚 dropped a gold coin at his feet as he was looking for food. This helped him to turn to a life of faith and became a raven褚. His name is remembered in the raven褚 statue located in the cathedral grounds; the raven褚 was immortalised by local artist Brian Scraton. “Madonna and Child” by local artist Brian Scraton.
